

Dear Friends, Colleagues, and Professional Acquaintances,

Pardon the informality of this email, but I wanted to get this email out as quickly and efficiently as possible. I have had contact with most of you receiving this email at various times, either as a personal friend, colleague, or student of mine at the University of Maryland. I may have met you at an AAFS or IAI annual meeting, or you may have been a guest on my webcast T.V. show, Forensicweek.com. I hope this email finds you in good health during these trying times.

I am reaching out to people in the criminal justice and forensic sciences fields to give you a preview of a new product I have created. It is a mobile App entitled to C.S.I. Checklist™. I am excited about it after its three-year development and final launching this week. I want you to be one of the first to look it over during the beta testing period before it is ready for purchase worldwide on January 1, 2021.

C.S.I. Checklist™ is a product of my forensic consultant company, ForensIQ. It is the first and currently the only App of its kind available today. Created to ensure that every crime scene investigation step is recalled and considered in the field, every question is asked, observations are made, and available resources are used.

It is a quick reference guide, on your Apple or Android mobile device, organized in a bulleted checklist format, that can be used when approaching a crime scene or interviewing a victim or witness. Please take just a few minutes to view a video that explains what the App is and its benefit to the entire criminal justice field. Click here - C.S.I. Checklist Introduction video.

To learn about the App in more detail, go to the website - <http://csichecklist.com/>.

The App is free to use during the beta testing phase, and that is why I am inviting you, your staff, and anyone else you believe would have an interest in downloading it from the Google Play or Apple App Stores. Please feel free to forward this email to your staff or anyone else you believe would be interested.

What I ask in return is that you review the checklists and navigate through the App to see its value and navigation procedures. Your feedback to determine its utility is vital to the overall success of this App. I have created a Google Form for your convenience. Click here to go to the C.S.I. Checklist Beta Test Evaluation Form. It will only take you a few minutes to fill out. You can provide feedback that can help us fine tune the App as it prepares for final release.

The last item in the evaluation form is a request for a short testimonial statement for those who feel inclined to write one to use in our marketing materials. If you prefer, you can leave a review in the App itself. Either way, your positive comments will be helpful to get this App to a larger population.

After the beta testing is completed, the App will be available for an annual subscription fee of approximately $7.99 for individual use. There will also be a bulk rate for organizations who wish to have all their staff have access to the App.

Thank you for taking the time to read this email and hopefully review the C.S.I. Checklist™ App. I am confident that this product will make a difference in the administration of justice.

I look forward to your feedback in the next few weeks, if possible.

Sincerely,

Tom Mauriello

CEO, ForensIQ, Inc.

Creator, C.S.I. Checklist™

Senior Lecturer, University of Maryland,

Department of Criminology and

Criminal Justice, College Park